Forty-five years ago they founded the Journal of the Pakistan Medical Association (JPMA). It has come along way since then, though the journey could not have been without its share of stumbles and falls. Yet, it strove on. Today, we are trying to establish a new venture within the precincts of the parent magazine.

We want to be heard even as medical students for we have so much to say and share in this day and age. Venturing henceforth from our 'Corner' there is no doubt we can make a difference, however small it may be in the beginning. Let's make it a coming together of research, ideas and experiences. There is so much to discover within and beyond us; for isn't that what Medicine is all about? And perhaps even life too? Welcome to the Students Corner.
